NUMBER 41

There is nothing so fickle as the weather, unless it is fashion.

The rascals are not being turned in very rapidly just at present.

A cholera preventive—clean streets, pure water, wholesome diet and courage.

The statue of Garfield, east at Nuremberg, Germany, will be erected at San Francisco.

It looks as if it won't take General Grant all summer to fight it out on the line of improvement.

Postmaster General Vilas did a good day's work on Friday. He appointed 60 postmasters on that day.

Chicago is a great city. It put up twenty million dollars worth of buildings and had 150 murders last year.

Fine weather may be expected during the next week, Massill, the weather prognosticator, predicts some storms.

The current number of Harper's Weekly contains some splendid portraits of General Grants' family with brief biographical sketches.

There are still no tidings of Mr. S. S. Conant, editor of Harper's Weekly. The chances are that he committed himself to the deep waters of the Hudson or the bay.

Secretary Whitney, of the navy department, has appointed Frank Peters, of Harrisburg, as his private secretary. He is a staunch republican, but that makes him all the more competent to serve a democratic administration.

Since the doors of the penitentiary are being opened to polygamists, the latter are beginning to think that polygamy is not such a divine institution after all. The sight of a prison is apt to cool the passion of the Utah polygamists.

The postmaster at Camden, New Jersey had a very poor eye to business. He wanted to increase his sales of stamps and thereby increase his salary, so he bought two pianos and $1,000 worth of merchandise and paid for them in stamps. Result: Mr. Cleveland told him to go and he went.

It must be encouraging to Mr. Armstrong, who married the famous Kentucky beauty two weeks ago, to walk into the cemetery and see the splendid monument she has erected to the memory of her three dead husbands, on which is inscribed, "To my husbands." He can also find space for several more inscriptions.

The republicans must look out for an earthquake soon. Mr. Jordan, of New York, appointed United States treasurer is one of the men who expects to discover mighty republican frauds regarding the cash in the treasury. We hope Mr. Jordan will not delay in trying to fish out these frauds. Maudslough promised he would do it, but he backed out, and now let Jordan try it.

Now that Mr. Jordan will take charge of the cash in the United States treasury, it will be necessary to count all the money, and a commission will be appointed in a few days to make the count. It is estimated that it will take three weeks to do it. The counting is all done, by weight when the money is coin—either silver or gold, but by the regular method of counting when the money is in bills.

Wyoming territory is not a slow coach. The authorities got several able descriptive writers to boom the territory, and among other wonderful things they found in Wyoming a mountain of solid hematite iron, a mile wide, two miles long, and six hundred feet high, a bed of lignite coal big enough to warm the world for several centuries, oil lakes of solid soda, and a great petroleum basin, from which oil is oozing all the time.

This is the way that the New York Mail and Express looks at the wheat outlook: What if the crop of winter wheat will be reduced 40,000,000 bushels, by decreased acreage and 60,000,000 by hard winter? The surplus from last year is about 100,000,000 bushels, and it spring wheat does fairly well, and it spring enough for our own use and for the use of all foreign customers we can secure at the advanced prices which now appear probable.

When the people of Washington territory can't speak loud enough is condemnation of what they think is wrong, they use dynamite. The Weekly Signal at Old Yokama, was about to remove to the new town called North Rakia, a distance of four miles, and the office was placed on trucks Monday. That night the whole establishment was blown up by dynamite by the residents of the old town, who were opposed to the removal. Poor judgment, but then it shows that they appreciate a newspaper.

The mayor of Allegheny proposes to stand by his friends. One of his friends is a tailor and the mayor has just ordered the entire police force, who are still wearing uniforms nearly new, to buy new suits from this tailor at $35 each, notwithstanding the readiness of other Allegheny tailors to make the same suits for $20. The other tailors do not happen to be his Honor's friends, and he does not see how a tailor can make a suit for $20, pocket a reasonable profit of it, and have anything left to divide. That is the kind of a mayor who expects to serve but one term, and wants that term to pay well.

The New York Times says the appearance of James H. Doolittle in search of an appointment is an insult to the administration. It calls Doolittle a mean, unsavory, miserable parasite. This is a pretty rough treatment of Judge Do-little coming from a paper of his party. But the Times is the paper that cast a dark shadow on Doolittle. It disclosed the Connelly letters in '72—letters that would put the Mulligan letters to shame. This man Doolittle is still on the hunt for office and in the language of the Milwaukee Journal, "if he doesn't get the foreign mission he is seeking, there may be some hope of new accession to the prohibition party in 1888. Mr. Doolittle is one of those thinking men who will not let party ties stand in the way of a principle which may bring office."

Mr. Eben F. Pillsbury, who has been appointed by the president a collector of internal revenue, was a rank copperhead during the war. He spoke of President Lincoln as a "cross between an Andalusian jack and a sandhill crane," and added that he had been "consigned to infamy and forgetfulness," and would "shine and stink and stink and shine like a rotten mackerel by moonlight." He was about the worst beaten candidate the democrats ever nominated for governor of Maine. He was associated with "Tubulator Chase," Plaiside and Garcelon in the counting-out-infamy in Maine in 1880, after which he found it to his advantage to move out of that state. If the president can stand Pillsbury, and desires to help that class of politicians, why not give Bragg the Watertown post-office by appointing the Confederate Gardner postmaster?

There is a good deal of practical wisdom, from a democratic point of view, in the arrangement Mr. Cleveland has made of holding a series of conferences with members of his cabinet, for the purpose of discussing official appointments and other matters under their respective departments. Wednesday night he held a long interview with the secretary of state, at which a number of foreign appointments were considered. At this conference Secretary Bayard is reported to have submitted a statement of the distribution of appointments thus far made among the states, and of the quota to which each would be entitled on the basis of their total democratic vote. The future appointments are believed to have been outlined as far as geographical considerations will govern them. The democratic party will soon pick up its ears and look lively when the president begins in earnest to dispense public patronage.

It seems from the reports which are being sent broadcast over the land, that Canada is doomed to financial bankruptcy. Its financial condition is about as follows: In 1870 its debt amounted to $85,000,000; in 1883, to $202,150,000; in 1884, to $223,000,000; March 31st, 1885, to $237,000,000. In addition to these figures, $32,000,000 has been advanced to the Canadian Pacific railway, which it is expected to pay up one of these days, but which it is very likely will manage to evade. The debt is now increasing $32,000,000 per year, or $2,500,000 per month, exclusive of the present war expenses, which are enormous. Last year, the dominion cabinet borrowed $25,000,000 at 3½ per cent on the London market, selling its bonds at 91, so that the $25,000,000 of paper only realized $23,750,000 in cash. On the first of January last, the dominion government was again forced to negotiate a $30,000,000 loan to meet the falling due of the consolidated provincial debt, assumed by the dominion in 1877, when the provincial union was formed. Before the close of this year, other Canadian loans, amounting to $55,000,000 will fall due and provision must be made for their renewal, for there is not a dollar in the treasury to pay them. The cause of this condition of things is that the resources of Canada are comparatively limited. Its total exports in 1884 did not exceed $100,000,000. In all the dominion, there was not manufactured in 1884 more than $300,000,000 worth of goods, which is below the manufacturing products of one state in the Union. Its debt per capita is twice as great as that of the United States, and its ability to pay not one quarter as good. It will be seen from these figures that its financial outlook is exceedingly gloomy.

SOME AMERICAN ORATIONS.
There has recently been published in New York, by Mr. G. P. Putnam's Sons, three dainty books, which stand forth like three graces of American eloquence. They contain representative American orations to illustrate American political history. We have had orations bound in volumes before, but we never had the leading speeches of our leading orators so judiciously selected and so thoroughly well arranged so as to illustrate the most important periods of our history, as we have in the work edited by Alexander Johnson.

While the world may have found much to criticize and condemn in the political history of the United States, there is no question that it has given to the English language many of its most powerful and persuasive specimens of oratory. Oratory is a wonderful natural power in a republic; but in America the freedom and force of institutions have been reinforced by a language peculiarly adapted to furnish a force and finish for eloquence. The collections of American orations have been numerous and useful, but the plenteousness of material has been the most serious source of embarrassment. With such a fertile field it makes it a matter of no small difficulty to make selection, on any exact system, and well nigh impossible to include all that have a fair claim to the distinctive stamp of oratory. The present collection is designed to enlist such selections from the great orators of American history as shall most clearly define the motives that actuated its leaders, and unite them by a thread of commentary which delineates the practical results of eloquence. Of course personal limitations must come into play, and the subjects that may appear as very representative to one may not be so in the attention of the author. It can be stated, however, and most emphatically, that the work has been advanced in strong and consistent style, showing the brightest and best lines of thought that have impelled and modified the course of American history.

Among the orations included in the work are those of Henry, Hamilton, Washington, Ames, Nicholas, Jefferson, Noah, Randolph, Quincy, Clay, Calhoun, Hayne, Webster, Phillips, Chase, Sumner, Douglas, Brooks, Burlingame, Clingman, Lincoln, Breckinridge, Seward, Crittenden, Iveson, Toombs, Hale, Stowes, Vallandigham, Schurz, Beecher, Pendleton, Sherman, Garfield, Blackburn, Haygood. The general division of the work has been made as follows: Colonialism, 1789; Continental Government, to 1801; The Rise of the Democracy, to 1815; The Rise of Nationality, to 1840; The Slavery Struggle, to 1860; Secession and Reconstruction, to 1870; Free Trade and Protection. Speaking about the slavery struggle, it is very surprising that Mr. Johnston should have omitted Lincoln's Cooper Institute speech of 1859. It was one of the most remarkable speeches made during that struggle because of the important historical facts it contains.

A FIGHT WITH RIEL.

MIDDLETON'S FORCES SURROUND THREE HUNDRED REBELS.

Who Fight with Determination and Pluck, and Do Deeds Worth of the Attacking Party—List of Casualties—Mutiford Relieved.

CLARK'S CROSSING, April 25.—A messenger just returned from the west bank of the river, has just arrived, as the messenger was leaving. The following are the casualties so far as known: Nineteenth Battalion.—Private Ferguson, company No. 4, killed; Sergt. Macdonald, company No. 1, killed; Private Jarvis, slightly wounded; Private Cantin, company No. 3, slightly wounded; Capt. Clarke, company No. 4, wounded in the side; the ball has been extracted; W. W. Matthews, company No. 1, shot in the left arm; C. Kemp, company No. 1, shot in the right arm; Corporal Gode, company No. 8, shot in both legs; Private Stewie, company No. 3, shot in the shoulder; Private Bonnell, company No. 4, head slightly wounded; Corporal Gode, company No. 2, shot through the breast, probably fatal.

Company C, School of Infantry.—R. McDougall, wounded in the arm; R. Harris, in the arm; H. Jones, in the arm; D. Jones, in the jaw; Harry Jones, in the jaw; Arthur Watson, shot fatally through the body; Sergt. M. A. Cummings, in the thigh. Battery A.—Toussaint, wounded in the shoulder; Sergt. May, wounded in the arm and shoulder; A. Taylor, eighty; Asseult, in the shoulder; Ainsworth, in the abdomen.

Reitons' cavalry—Captain Gardner, wounded in the abdomen; John Landau, in the shoulder; Bruen, in the right arm; J. Thompson, in the collar-bone; H. Purvis, in the left arm; King, slightly. Several others were wounded, but their names have not been brought in yet. One party of the rebels was disclosed at noon, the artillery was still snuffing the rebels in the ravine. Several Indian parties were captured.

The rebel loss is not yet known. The Indians set the prairie on fire, but a heavy hailstorm extinguished the flames. The engagement was of short duration. Two pickets of the insurgents and of Middleton's troops first had a skirmish. The Scotch company of the Nineteenth battalion, commanded by Capt. Clarke, being nearest, was the first to fire and to receive a volley from the rebels, who numbered about 300. Capt. Clarke was the first to fall, badly wounded. Then Corporal Macdonald dropped dead, killed by a bullet. Private Ferguson was next hit, and quite a number were badly wounded. Two minutes after the first shot, the rebels were driven back. Middleton rode up, and his cap was struck by a bullet from a rifle in the hands of a sharpshooter. Capt. Wise, whose horse was shot from under him, was badly injured in falling.

The soldiers behaved very well, notwithstanding the fact that they were in the first line of the fight. The rebels were driven back, and the fighting was of short duration. The rebels were driven back, and the fighting was of short duration. The rebels were driven back, and the fighting was of short duration.

The Relief of Battledore. WINNIPEG, April 25.—Col. Harebaker, commanding the Nineteenth, arrived at Battledore Thursday night, but was afraid to enter the barracks until morning, so camped on the south side of the Battledore river. The garrison hailed the arrival with delight, and when at noon, Friday, Col. Otter, with his column, marched in, there was unbounded enthusiasm. The people went for joy. Provisions had been growing very scarce, and the Indians had been very numerous around the town, and had been making threats, but when they saw the troops coming they fell back. Before Harebaker arrived Indians soaked and burned Judge Roberts' house, as well as the Gibson bay-house. The explosion of a large quantity of gunpowder caused some consternation. A quantity of bacon and other provisions were burned.

It is feared that Big Bear's men have massacred Pastor McLean and those with him. That Colorado Prize Snowstorm. DENVER, Colo., April 25.—Reports from certain towns within a radius of fifty miles of this city, just arriving, report the recent snowfall the heaviest for eighteen years. The Colorado Central road was blocked and is just beginning to get trains through. Some damage is reported by the crushing of light timbers. It is rumored that about 300 cattle drifted into a hole north of Fort Collins and perished. Howling Old Times. NEW ORLEANS, La., April 25.—A special to The Times-Democrat from Farmersville, La., says: Four men went to the farm of W. H. Mabry in this parish, and, taking an negro woman out of the cabin, they whipped her. Mabry came to her assistance and was shot dead. W. C. Henderson and Walter Ferguson were identified by the old woman and have been arrested. They have heretofore stood high in the community.

He writes: "Last night I left my heart with you. A captive, your loving hand. As you have one that is kind and true. Pray send me yours to take its place."

Brides.

—See Steele and Smith at the rink to-night. Programme will be changed. Admission 15 cents.
—Denniston has a fresh supply of lettuce and asparagus direct from the gardens of Southern Illinois.
—Steele and Smith captured the house last night. They are a great team and no one should miss seeing them.
—McCullagh & Galbraith are now ready to meet the wants of the ladies; their stock is complete, and prices low.
—See list of 12 prizes in our advertising columns, to be awarded at the children's fancy dress carnival next Saturday afternoon.
—The sale of reserved seats for the Gus Williams entertainment at the opera house, commenced this morning at Prentice and Evanson's drug store.
—The entertainment to be given by the Odd Fellows in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of the order in America, will take place on Monday evening next, April 27th.
—Died—Friday evening, April 24th, Mrs. Anna Herbert, wife of Frederick Herbert. Funeral services will be held at the house on South Jackson street, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.
—Dr. A. P. Burns has published a scientific paper on the propagation of cholera in this country, illustrating the bacteria of cholera and of chicken cholera; the best thing we have seen on cholera and we highly commend it to the city and board of health.
—Mr. Max Fleming is the first man to lay down his two hundred dollars on the desk of the city treasurer and demand a permit to sell liquor according to law. Mr. Fleming will take charge of the "Indiana Saloon," West Milwaukee street, May 1st, succeeding Mr. George Hackman.
—Heinemann sold his entire stock of spruce gum—20 barrels, in just three days. This morning a second lot of 20 barrels was unloaded in front of his store and he says he is going to sell it in three days more. He has it for sale also in small lots, 1 cent packages or even smaller. It is worth while to go in and see 20 barrels of spruce gum in a row. See his ad.
—Wednesday evening, April 29th, the rink management will give a complimentary benefit to the Mobile drill team of "The Guards." The team will appear in their new uniforms for the first time, and will give an exhibition drill from 9 to 9:30 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the rink will be cleared of skaters, and dancing will be indulged in. This will be a novelty, and will no doubt bring out a big house.
—Parties who claim to know what they are talking about, condemn the cedar blocks that have been delivered to pave Milwaukee street bridge, contending that the blocks are without life—that they have been dead for the past ten or more years, and that they will not endure much longer than corn-cobs placed on end on the bridge. This is something for the bridge committee to look after before it is too late to remedy the defect.
—Dr. A. P. Burns is spending a few days in Janesville. He has earned the reputation of being the most skillful dentist in the northwest. During the past winter many have made long pilgrimages from Dakota and other places to obtain his services and get artificial teeth that they could talk and eat with. He is being hailed at almost every corner of the street, to know what is the matter with the 85 teeth, that they want cut.
—Persons in Ithica, New York, were asked what they would charge to furnish corn enough to cover a checkerboard, placing one kernel on the first block, two on the next, four on the next, and so on, have answered, from $5 to $10. Local mathematicians have figured it up and find that it would take 8,690,670,338,924 bushels, estimating it at 200,000 kernels to a bushel, which at 60 cents a bushel amounts to $520,802,203,294.85. This result has been doubted. Are there any young mathematicians in Janesville, who have the courage and the ability to test the correctness of the figures given by the Ithica mathematicians?
—Messrs. Steele and Smith delighted the patrons of the Riverside rink last evening in a series of fancy and trick performances on skates. The performance of these gentlemen was far ahead of anything of the kind previously presented here. The skaters were immense, and the gentlemen were frequently rewarded by loud bursts of applause. The performance will be repeated this evening, with a slight change of programme. The Bower City band was present last evening and furnished music for the occasion. The matinee at the rink this afternoon is well attended.
—There was a very pleasant gathering at Mrs. Blinfield's music room on Jackson street last evening, the occasion being a musicale given by her pupils. The programme was an unusually attractive one and consisted of selections from the compositions of Kahlén, Weber, Beethoven, Bocherini, Kuhn, Leschetzky and others. The pupils did themselves and their teachers great credit. Those taking part were Maggie Joyce, Rose Smith, Florence Johnson, Irene Platter, Edith Severin, Glennie McGuire, Ida Downing, Misses Nellie and Gertrude Cobb, of Beloit, and Geo. Kimball. Mrs. Blinfield goes to Chicago on Monday for a vacation of one week, and will resume teaching Tuesday, May 5th.
—The members of W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R. were presented last evening with a steel-plate engraving, framed, by Messrs. Oles, Dutton & Son, insurance agents. The picture is very appropriate to hang upon the walls of the Post headquarters, as it represents the great war president and his staff.

Admiral Farragut, Generals Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Meade, Thomas Hancock, Hooker, all in full uniform, with the exception of Grant. In the upper left hand corner is the capital building at Washington, below this is represented Farragut in the rigging of his ship at Mobile bay. In the right hand upper corner is the White house, and below, the soldier's monument at Gettysburg. Fort Sumpter, and the engagement between the Monitor and the Merrimack, and war scenes are represented. The presentation speech was made by Post Adjutant E. G. Harlow. The Post returned hearty thanks to Messrs. Dutton & Son, accompanied with a grand army cheer.
—The other evening, during the rain storm, a first ward lady, whose occupation I keep her down town until after nine o'clock, was going home alone, carrying her umbrella. Reaching Madison street, where people, and especially ladies, consider themselves safe to be out at that time, she slackened her step, and was taking her own time in reaching her home. Suddenly a man came up behind her, grabbing her around the waist. Instead of screaming, as most ladies would under like circumstances, she quietly folded her umbrella, and at the opportune moment turned upon the scoundrel and let him have a blow square in the face, followed by other blows as fast as she could ply them. The result was the man? beat a hasty retreat, the lady following close in the rear in hopes she might be able to identify him. The chase was kept up until Ravine street was reached, when he disappeared. A lady of such nerve ought to be allowed to carry a revolver—it would result in ridding the community of just such scoundrels as this man appeared to be.
Owls.
There is nothing quite so pleasant as a nice tame owl. Fully convinced of this fact, and having a desire to add to their stock of rare specimens, the Lime Kiln club sent out their purchasing agent last week, with instructions to bring home an owl regardless of cost. The enthusiastic agent started out with plenty of money and a pair of telegraph pole climbers in his pocket, and wearing a corduroy suit and a determined look which meant business. Out in the wilds of Monticello, over in the edge of Groen county, the hooding of owls make the night hideous, and to the famous roost the purchaser agent would have way. After a good deal of climbing he finally obtained a pure white specimen which is now on exhibition at the branch office of the Lime Kiln club which is located in the basement of Messrs. G. A. Metcalf & Co's hardware store on West Milwaukee street. It is in charge of a man by the name of Clemens who will be on duty Monday morning from 9 to 11 o'clock. People who have never seen a pure white owl should take advantage of this rare opportunity so generously furnished by the officers of the Lime Kiln club.
Results.
People are not always able to judge accurately as to the outcome of an undertaking until time has produced results; many a business enterprise has collapsed, that promised profitable returns, and other enterprises have succeeded when the outlook from the starting point was less favorable. About a week ago Mr. R. S. Winslow, of 16 and 18 River street, announced that he had bought at a bargain a stock of boots and shoes which he would sell regardless of cost or loss, commencing Wednesday, April 23d.
One side of his commodious store was speedily transformed into a boot and shoe department and the sale commenced on the day and the date announced. The trade has been large from the very start and people have gone away from his store every hour of the day loaded down with groceries and boots and shoes. Results have proved that prices sell goods, and that a little judicious advertising, backed up by good goods at reasonable prices, means business. Don't fail to look over the bargain in boots and shoes at 16 and 18 River street.
Wanted—A Customer for a Goat.
The Gazette has an opportunity to become the owner of a goat, but having no particular use for one of these ornamental little animals and thinking that possibly some of our readers might be pining away on account of the absence of goats in the back yard, we would simply say that any reasonable proposition will be considered at the Gazette counting room. The goat at our disposal is not a Thomas goat, it possesses all the qualities of a Jersey goat; in fact it supplied a small family with a wealthily quality of milk all last winter, with the aid of a reliable pump and a half a dozen cows a small dairy could be established which would soon become self supporting. If your means are limited you can buy or borrow the goat and we will put you on track of a few Plymouth Rock ones and this will give you an outfit that will unquestionably add to your poverty every day. The goat is gentle, and so are the hons; the latter will average in good weather, as many as eight eggs a month. You will be able to save the most of the best product after you become acquainted with the fowls—they don't require any rest or China eggs in the way of encouragement, as they always stand on a light foot and allow the egg to take the chances of landing on a soft spot on the ground. This is sometimes a little embarrassing for the egg, but a good smart boy with a basket, will successfully save more than he will lose.
The man who paddles his way through life without a Plymouth Rock hen, never knows how much annoyance and trouble he has escaped on the voyage; but the man who never owned a goat, has missed the rarest investment of a lifetime. We have only one of these rare and useful animals at our command; terms easy. Apply after eight o'clock Monday morning.

A sudden Death.
A representative of the Gazette was passing along Madison street in Chicago, last Wednesday evening, when his attention was attracted to a man standing on a ladder, engaged in adjusting an electric light. He stood with one foot on the ladder and the other on an iron bracket that supported a cluster of lights. By some carelessness he received a partial shock, and to prevent himself from falling grasped with both hands an iron brace above his head—like a flash of lightning the electric current was transmitted to his body causing instant death. When the dynamo was stopped he fell to the stone pavement, breaking his neck and presenting a horrible spectacle to the crowd which quickly gathered. A moment later a patrol wagon was at hand and as the lifeless remains were lifted into it, the hands that grasped the fatal rod were extended above the head in the same position where death had transfixed them. The crowd quietly dispersed and in five minutes not a trace remained to mark the tragic death.
The electric light flashed out as brilliant as though nothing had occurred, and the life that had so suddenly gone out in darkness was only missed in the home and circle from which it had departed.

Trotting Horses.
The compilation of the third volume of Dutton's Trotting Horse Breeder and Turf Manual has been attended with manifold vexations, and has been retarded somewhat in consequence of delayed information upon several pedigrees embraced in the work. But in a compilation of such importance, covering a period of more than fifty years, and embracing every trotter and pacer which has a record of 2:30 or better, and an acknowledged pedigree, there will always be more or less to interfere with its completeness. I have therefore been compelled to place the day of publication beyond my first intention, and cannot even now flatter myself that I have escaped all errors, but do feel confident that patrons will find the work as a whole, well done. There have been collected for this manual, more details than will be found in any other book of reference for breeders or turfmen, no matter how expensive. I believe, too, that the information given has been so arranged as to be readily found and easily comprehended. The object of Dutton's Turf Manual is to provide a cheap book of reference for the million, as accurate as the most expensive registers and stud books, and so cheap as to be within the reach of every man who owns a colt, or has a mare to breed. I firmly believe that the correct education of the masses is the shortest road to prosperity for the entire body of trotting horse breeders, and the quickest and most certain remedy for many turf evils. In compiling this standard reference for popular use, I hope some assistance has been given to the better turf element.

The three volumes of the Manual now before the public give as clearly and accurately as is possible, the pedigree and history of trotting and pacing horses in America. In this third volume, while the performers who come into the 2:30 list new, or reduced their records in 1884, will be found arranged alphabetically; there will also be found all performers in 2:30 or better, from first to last, with year when foaled, if known, and record classified under their sires, which are also arranged alphabetically. The extended pedigrees of noted brood mares can be traced by reference to the breeding of their produce. This volume also embraces a class of statistics, to be found in the time tables, which has never been condensed into any single publication, no matter how expensive or comprehensive. The tables and pedigrees furnish at a glance such information for amateurs, and even for experienced breeders, as cannot be gathered anywhere else, without weeks and months of laborious research. For these reasons the man who for any reason feels an intelligent interest in the American trotting horse.
